AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL 50TH ANNIVERSARY: FACTS AND FIGURES

GENERAL

Amnesty International was founded in 1961 by British lawyer Peter Benenson after he read about Portuguese students sentenced to seven years in prison for raising their glasses in a toast to freedom.

Amnesty International is a worldwide voluntary movement made up of people from all walks of life who work together to campaign for human rights. It is independent of any government, political ideology, economic interest or religion and is therefore solely dependent on the support of its members and the general public.

The famous Amnesty International candle wrapped in barbed wire was inspired by the ancient Chinese proverb; “It is better to light a candle than to curse the darkness”.

NUMBER OF MEMBERS

Amnesty International has more than 3 million supporters, members and activists in over 150 countries and territories, in every region of the world.

MAJOR POLICY DECISIONS AT AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL

Amnesty International is a democratic movement whose major policy decisions are taken by representatives from all national sections at International Council meetings held every two years.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL AND THE NOBEL PEACE PRIZE

In 1977, Amnesty International was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, for "having contributed to securing the ground for freedom, for justice, and thereby also for peace in the world". It was received on behalf of the organisation by Thomas Hammarberg, who became Secretary General in 1980.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL MISSIONS

From 1961 until the end of 2010, Amnesty International conducted at least 3,341 missions to research human rights abuses around the world.

REPORTS AND PUBLIC DOCUMENTS

Amnesty International has produced and published an estimated 17,093 reports and public documents on human rights, since its foundation in 1961. This figure does not include Urgent Actions or press releases.

ANNUAL REPORT

Amnesty International has published an Annual Report every year since 1961.

The report - or versions of the report - is produced in more than 25 languages and is sent to a wide range of stakeholders around the world from Amnesty International sections and partner organizations to government ministers and Heads of State.
It is a popular reference tool stocked in libraries and used by academics worldwide.

Amnesty International sections use the report as a fundraising and press tool. The report’s launch is a key event which sections use to engage media in their country and raise awareness on the state of the world’s human rights.

The report is available online with statistics for download.

LANGUAGES
Amnesty International works in all languages. In addition to its four core languages of Arabic, English, French and Spanish, it works closely with national sections and local partners to ensure that human rights are understood by everyone, in any language.

URGENT ACTIONS

The Amnesty International Urgent Action network was established by an Amnesty International researcher to enable the swift, worldwide mobilization of people to take action at short notice when an individual was identified as being in immediate danger, or when a human rights crisis was taking place.

The first appeal for Urgent Action was issued in 1973.

Professor Rossi was the subject of the first Urgent Action, issued on 19 March 1973. A prisoner of conscience in Brazil under the military regime, then a human rights activist - his story has set a powerful model for the tens of thousands of urgent actions that have followed. It was not until the letters started to pour in that Rossi’s relatives were allowed to visit him. Although many people taken into police custody were never seen again, Rossi was eventually freed in October 1973.

From 1985 to 2010 a total of 20,544 new Urgent Actions were distributed, plus 10,536 Urgent Action follow-ups.

267 Urgent Actions were sent out in 2010 on cases throughout the world.

CAMPAIGNS

Amnesty International is an action and campaign oriented NGO.

The movement comes together every two years at International Council Meetings to decide the key human rights areas where campaigning action should be taken to create change.

Campaigns are also often launched in response to world events.

CONTROL ARMS
The unregulated global arms trade inflicts misery worldwide. Every year thousands of people are killed, injured, raped and forced to flee their homes as a result of armed violence. The Control Arms campaign calls for a global Arms Trade Treaty (ATT) that would establish strict rules for the international transfer of arms, and hold irresponsible arms suppliers and dealers to account.

DEATH PENALTY
The death penalty is the ultimate denial of human rights. It is the premeditated and cold-blooded killing of a human being by the state. This cruel, inhuman and degrading punishment is done in the name of justice. It violates the right to life as proclaimed in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Soon after its foundation in 1961, Amnesty International began sending appeals to prevent the execution of prisoners of conscience. Today, the organization’s opposition to the death penalty includes all prisoners, regardless of the crimes of which they have been convicted.

Progress has been dramatic in the last few decades. In 1977, only 16 countries had abolished the death penalty for all crimes. Thirty years later, that number had grown to 90.

DEMAND DIGNITY
People living in poverty are more vulnerable to human rights violations – such as forced evictions – and these violations can drive people further into poverty.

Amnesty International’s Demand Dignity campaign aims to enable people living in poverty to exercise and claim their rights, to hold governments, companies and international financial institutions to account for human rights abuses, and to participate in the decisions that affect their lives.

The campaign focuses on four central themes: slums and forced evictions, the legal enforcement of economic, social and cultural rights, maternal health and sexual and reproductive rights and corporate accountability.

INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE
Amnesty International campaigns for an effective system of international justice to ensure justice, truth and full reparations for crimes under international law: genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes, torture, extrajudicial executions and enforced disappearances.

SECURITY WITH HUMAN RIGHTS
The so-called ‘war on terror’ has led to the erosion of a whole host of human rights. States are resorting to practices which have long been prohibited by international law, and have sought to justify them in the name of national security.

CAMPAIGNS AND CAMPAIGNING WORK THROUGH THE YEARS

1962 Prisoner of Conscience Fund is set up to provide for the families of prisoners.

1965 Monthly Postcards for Prisoners Campaign starts.

1968 The first Prisoner of Conscience Week.

1973 Amnesty International issues its first full Urgent Action, on behalf of Professor Luiz Basilio Rossi, a Brazilian, on 19 March. He was arrested for political reasons. Luiz himself believed that Amnesty International’s appeals were crucial: “I knew that my case had become public, I knew they could no longer kill me. Then the pressure on me decreased and conditions improved.”

1973 The first Campaign Against Torture.

1976 Worldwide campaign launched against torture in Uruguay.
1977 Major campaign is the Year of the Prisoner of Conscience. Joan Miro, Elisabeth Frink, Alexander Calder and Roland Torpor are among the artists who create posters for Amnesty International’s prisoner of conscience year.

1980 The first campaign against the Death Penalty.

1983 Campaign against Political Killings by Governments.

1984 The second Campaign Against Torture, which includes a 12-point plan for the abolition of torture.

1987 USA Death Penalty Campaign.

1989 Campaign against the Death Penalty.

1991 “No more Excuses!” 30th Anniversary Campaign.

2005 Counter Terror with Justice Campaign.

2008 Beijing Olympics Campaign.

2009 Amnesty International launches the Demand Dignity campaign with the intention of ending the economic, social and cultural rights violations which, with civil and political rights abuses, combine to drive and deepen poverty.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL FINANCE AND FUNDING

FINANCING AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL'S WORK
The overwhelming majority of Amnesty International's income comes from individual donors and members. These personal and unaffiliated donations allow Amnesty International to maintain full independence from any and all governments, political ideologies, economic interests or religions.

Amnesty International neither seeks nor accepts any funds for human rights research from governments or political parties and accepts support only from businesses that have been carefully vetted. By only seeking funding from these sources and ensuring that the membership remain at the heart of the organisation, Amnesty International maintains complete independence and impartiality in its unwavering defence of universal and indivisible human rights.

TOTAL REVENUE
The total income of all Amnesty International sections for the year ending 31 December 2009 was €202 million.

Of the total global income of €202m, around €56million was apportioned for use by the International Secretariat. These funds are then used to fund the activities of the International Secretariat and to support sections that are not able to be self-sufficient.

The majority of sections are financially self-sufficient, and they send an agreed proportion of their revenue each year to the International Secretariat.

STAFF AT THE INTERNATIONAL SECRETARIAT

As of 31 December 2010, there are 436 staff members working at the International Secretariat in London. Including remote workers and non-London International Secretariat workers, the total is 518.

This amounts to an estimated 844,858* hours (or 24,139 working weeks) of work to safeguard human rights across the globe. However, this is just the work of the International Secretariat and therefore does not include the many thousands of people working to promote and safeguard human rights in Amnesty International Sections, Structures, and other organisations in partnership with Amnesty International throughout the world.

* NB: this figure is a guide estimate and does not include hours worked as overtime. (Averaging 35 hours per week = 1,820 per year per person, minus 189 hrs. Average 27 days holiday) =
1,631 hrs, multiplied by 518.) The International Secretariat is staffed by dedicated individuals and the actual hours worked is significantly higher.

Staff at the International Secretariat originate from all over the world, some of whom have worked at Amnesty International for more than 30 years. As a microcosm of the multicultural nature of Amnesty International’s members and supporters, it reflects the true universality of human rights.

The average age of a member of staff is 40 years old. The International Secretariat currently has 32 staff working on the Americas region, 41 working on the Asia-Pacific region, 32 on the Middle East and North Africa region, 41 on the Europe and Central Asia region, and 47 on the Africa region.

NATIONALITIES
Over 66 nationalities currently work at the International Secretariat.
